What is a PAC and Why is it Important?
In the United States, a political action committee (PAC) is a type of organization that pools campaign contributions from members and donates those funds to campaign for or against candidates, ballot initiatives, or legislation. The legal term PAC has been created in pursuit of campaign finance reform in the United States.

At the U.S. federal level, an organization becomes a PAC when it receives or spends more than $1,000 for the purpose of influencing a federal election, and registers with the Federal Election Commission, according to the Federal Election Campaign Act as amended by the Bipartisan Campaign Reform Act of 2002 (also known as the McCain-Feingold Act). At the state level, an organization becomes a PAC according to the state's election laws.

Why should I contribute to PAC?

Home Inspectors are affected each day by decisions made by politicians. What is the home inspector's role in the real estate transaction? Liability for defects found, third parties using the inspection report, rules and regulations for licensing home inspectors, frequency of completing CE's, frequency of updating a license, etc - these are ALL impacted by elected officials. If we join together at the state and national level, we can elect legislators who will work with and for us when making decisions that impact your work, your your family, your clients, and our national organizations.

I already pay dues - why should I pay more?

Dues dollars are used to fund the operation of our local, county, state and national associations. Federal and State laws prohibit ANY dues dollars from being direct contributions to candidates. Your voluntary political contributions go into a separate account to be used for those purposes.

Should home inspectors as a group really be involved in politics?
Elected politicians have a great deal of control over school employees. We need public officials who are responsive to our concerns. Thus, we must be involved in electing our political officials. As a group, we can do more than we can as individuals.

What does InspectPAC do?
InspectPAC raises money to help elect and re-elect candidates to Congress who have an understanding of the home inspection profession, and who are supportive of the profession. Contribute with others who believe in a strong home inspection profession. Help raise donations for the Political Action Committee.

Is there a special event to help raise money for InspectPAC?
Glad you asked! Every year at InspectionWorld, ASHI holds an even sponsored by InspectPAC to help raise funds for our lobbyist in Washington DC. It is always held on the second night of the conference. In Orlando, we will have an event that will help us all relax and unwind after a busy first full conference day from 7:00 - 8:30 pm on January 22, 2018. We'll have an open bar, food, and and listen to some great lounge music. Tickets are available when you register for InspectionWorld or at the door. Raffle tickets are for sale at the event with proceeds benefitting InspectPAC. We look forward to seeing you there. If not, please help out InspectPAC and your profession now!

TIPS FOR YOUR REALTORS from Applica Solutions

Don't Let a Little Mold Ruin Your Realtor Commission!
Just because a home inspector finds mold, it doesn't have to kill your real estate transaction. Knowing the facts about mold can help salvage many mold discovery scenarios. According to Moldman LLC, below are a few examples:

Scenario: A few inches of mold is found in a small area of the home and your client is worried that mold is everywhere.

In this scenario it can be helpful to let your buyers or sellers know that mold only grows where there is water or high relative humidity. If mold is identified around a single window where condensation is present, there is no need to start ripping out walls in other areas of the home that are dry.

Scenario: Mold is disclosed in the listing agreement or later identified during an inspection and you and your client are unsure whether you need it tested.

If you already see mold, testing is almost always an unnecessary waste of money. This is because it does not matter what type of mold you have, as once any mold has been identified, all mold should be treated the same way...READ MORE
Tip #56: Quiet That Squeaky Door Hinge

While a squeeky door may have a few advantages – you can tell when the kids come and go – in general, a squeaky door is an annoyance. And if you ignore a squeaky door too long, friction can wear the hinge pin excessively and make the door hard to operate.

The fix is simple.

Purchase light lubricating oil in a small can with a drip spout. This allows you to apply just a few drops at a time. The oil may be called 3-in-1 oil or sewing machine oil.

With a small rag or paper towel handy, place few drops of oil atop the tight horizontal pin joint at the hinge. The oil will be drawn into the joints, and you can catch any excessive oil with the rag by wiping the hinge. Repeat on all hinges. Open and close the door completely a few times to distribute the oil, and take one last wipe at the hinge to ensure that no oil drips on the floor. You should lubricate the hinges about every two years. I like to use the oil in a small can because it’s not messy like a spray lubricant.

It's almost that time of the year — and I'm not referring to the holidays. It's almost InspectionWorld! With this huge conference and many other tradeshows dates quickly approaching, it's important to be sure you are prepared for any upcoming tradeshow you plan on exhibiting at.
Here are some helpful tips to ensure you stand out at InspectionWorld and your next tradeshow:

Make your booth pop

There are only a few seconds to engage show attendees before they pass you by and talk to your competition. Standing out in the crowd is key and interesting graphics, text, lighting and textures can make a huge difference in getting those potential customers to stop and take a closer look.

Invite them to Stop

Now that you have their attention, it's time to convince attendees to actually stop and interact with your staff. Games, contests, mascots, photo-ops and interactive product spaces are good ways to give attendees just enough of a push to have a look around.

Want to give your booth and brand that extra push? Take advantage of sponsorship opportunities with your audience interaction.

Engage With your Audience

Once attendees stop in your booth, it is time for your event staff to take action. A well organized, easy to spot and educated staff can turn casual booth visitors into long time customers. Be sure your space is adequately staffed; getting attendees’ attention and having them stop doesn’t help if they don’t learn about your products or services.

A Comment to Consider When Using Social Media

Did you know that when you are on social media and not in a password-protected discussion forum, closed or private group; you’re found through common searches on Google or Facebook. The content you post, especially when bashing someone else in your field, doesn’t look good to potential clients conducting a search on you and your company. In order to call yourself a “professional” you need to act “professionally”. And when you represent yourself and your company online, you need to conduct yourself professionally. Remember that you are a home inspection professional that is part of the home inspection industry.
